"I begin to feel rather dissatisfied with a mere local collection - little is to be learnt by it. I sh^d like to take some one family, to study thoroughly - principally with a view to the theory of the origin of species. By that means I am strongly of opinion that some definite results might be arrived at."

Wallace to Henry Walter Bates, 1847

"It is curious how we hit on the same ideas." Charles Darwin to Wallace, 1867

"...of Mr. Wallace and his many contributions to philosophical biology, it is not easy to speak without enthusiasm; for, putting aside their great merits, he, throughout his writings, with a modesty as rare as I believe it to be in him unconscious, forgets his own unquestioned claims to the honour of having originated, independently of Mr. Darwin, the theories which he so ably defends." Joseph Hooker, 1868

"...very few things in my life have been more satisfactory to me - that we have never felt any jealousy towards each other, though in one sense rivals." Darwin to Wallace, 1870

"...may it not be safely prophesied that of all the names on the starry scroll of national fame that of Charles Darwin will, surely, remain unquestioned? And entwined with his enduring memory, by right of worth and work, and we know with Darwin's fullest approval, our successors will discover the name of Alfred Russel Wallace. Darwin and Wallace were pre-eminent sons of light.

Among the great men of the Victorian age Wallace occupied a unique position. He was the co-discoverer of the illuminating theory of Natural Selection; he watched its struggle for recognition against prejudice, ignorance, ridicule and misrepresentation; its gradual adoption by its traditional enemies; and its final supremacy. And he lived beyond the hour of its signal triumph and witnessed the further advance into the same field of research of other patient investigators who are disclosing fresh phases of the same fundamental laws of development, and are accumulating a vast array of new facts which tell of still richer light to come to enlighten every man born into the world. To have lived through that brilliant period and into the second decade of the twentieth century; to have outlived all contemporaries, having been the co-revealer of the greatest and most far-reaching generalisation in an era which abounded in fruitful discoveries and in revolutionary advances in the application of science to life, is verily to have been the chosen of the gods." James Marchant, 1916

"...there is no more admirable character in the history of science." Sir David Attenborough, 2013

Yours very truly
Alfred R. Wallace

Introduction

This is the first catalogue of the surviving correspondence of the important naturalist and scientist, Alfred Russel Wallace (1823-1913). It was produced by the Wallace Correspondence Project (WCP) and updated editions will be published from time to time if the project secures funding to continue its work.

The catalogue contains records of 5,688 letters arranged chronologically, of which 2,748 were written by Wallace and 2,159 were sent to him. The remaining 781 are third party letters which either pertain to him (e.g. a letter from Richard Spruce to William Jackson Hooker which mentions why Wallace and Bates went their separate ways in the Amazon), or are letters written by Wallace's close relatives which contain information useful to scholars interested in Wallace's life. Note that 6,923 individual documents are catalogued, since a letter may be comprised of several items e.g. the letter itself, an enclosed manuscript, the envelope etc (please see our definition of a letter below).

In addition to letters which the WCP has obtained copies of, the catalogue also lists letters which the WCP has some information about and are reasonably sure still exist, even if their contents are unknown. For example, letters sold at auction in the last c. 20 years, where only the sender, recipient and date are known.

It is clear that only a small fraction of Wallace's correspondence has survived. For example, of the c. 500 friends and colleagues listed in his two surviving address books, no correspondence has (so far) been found between Wallace and more than half of them. Yet Wallace must surely have written to virtually all of them, given that letters were the main form of remote communication during his lifetime. Although he kept most of Darwin's letters, he seems to have disposed of the majority of the others he received, perhaps because he moved house frequently. Curiously he seems not to have kept even a single letter from his beloved wife, unless she or another relative disposed of them (several letters from Wallace to his wife are known).

In the following sections I give a brief overview of Wallace's significance in the history of science, and then explain what the WCP's aims are and what work it has accomplished so far. I then detail the protocols used to format the metadata of the letters listed in the main body of the catalogue, followed by a chronological list of the places and houses where Wallace lived. Last but certainly not least, I acknowledge the organisations and people without whom this catalogue could not have been produced.

Alfred Russel Wallace

Wallace was one of the most important scientists in history, and although his seminal contributions to biology rival those of his friend and colleague Charles Darwin, he is far less well known. Together Wallace and Darwin proposed the theory of evolution by natural selection in 1858, and their prolific subsequent work laid the foundations of modern evolutionary biology, and much more besides.

Wallace made enduring scholarly contributions to subjects as diverse as glaciology, land reform, anthropology, ethnography, epidemiology, and astrobiology. His pioneering work on evolutionary biogeography (the science that seeks to explain the geographical distribution of organisms) led to him becoming recognised as that subject's 'father'. Beyond this Wallace is regarded as the pre-eminent collector and field biologist of tropical regions during the 19th century, and his book The Malay Archipelago (which was Joseph Conrad's favourite bedside reading) is one of the most celebrated travel writings of that century and has never been out of print. Wallace was a man with an extraordinary breadth of interests who was actively engaged with many of the big questions and important issues of his day. He was anti-slavery, anti-eugenics, anti-vivisection, anti-militarism, anti-Imperialism, a conservationist and an advocate of woman's rights. He strongly believed in the rights of the ordinary person, was a liberal socialist, an anti-vaccinationist (for rational reasons), and a believer in naturalistic, evolutionary spiritualism. He did not come from a privileged background and was largely self-taught. For a short biography see:

The Wallace Correspondence Project

The WCP was established by George Beccaloni in 2010 and has so far received 7 years and 9 months of funding. The project's aims are to locate, digitise, catalogue, transcribe, interpret and publish Wallace's surviving correspondence and other manuscripts.

Wallace's letters are a biographical treasure trove, and provide a far better picture of the 'real' Wallace than his heavily edited and censored published writings (e.g. his autobiography My Life (1905) or Marchant's Letters and Reminiscences (1916)). For example, Wallace never mentions the name of his wife (Annie) in any of his published writings, including his autobiography, perhaps out of Victorian propriety. The letters are also key to gaining a deeper understanding of his scientific and other work: how and why his ideas arose, and how they evolved over time.

The WCP is unlocking this valuable resource by gathering the letters together for the first time and transcribing them so that they can be more easily read and information within them discovered using electronic searches for words and phrases. The vast amount of previously unpublished information which the project is making available will surely form the basis for numerous articles, scholarly papers, PhD theses and perhaps the first definitive biography.

To date the WCP has achieved the following:

- it has obtained 26,819 digital images of 7,409 documents (6,925 documents representing 5,688 letters, and 484 other non-letter manuscripts) from 245 repositories and individuals around the world. Letters have also been found in 245 articles and books.
- it has catalogued the letters using the project's MS Access database. The information about the letters listed below is an extract of these metadata.
- the project's 171 volunteers have produced draft electronic transcriptions of all the letters (called "Level 1" transcripts by the project).
- it has produced summaries of 1,438 letters.
- the project's researchers have carefully edited 1,004 Level 1 transcripts and written scholarly endnotes for them to help the reader better understand the text (these are known as "Level 2" transcripts).

Future work:

- researchers need to edit 4,768 Level 1 transcripts and write scholarly endnotes for them.
- all letter metadata needs to be carefully checked.
- researchers need to write summaries for 4,250 letters.
- Wallace's 1,592 correspondents, plus the more than 2,000 other people mentioned in the letters, need to be further researched, and concise biographies written.
- the project needs to continue to attempt to locate undiscovered letters in repositories worldwide and obtain images of them. We believe that many hundreds still remain to be found.
- a Wallace specialist (the project's Director) needs to edit all of the Level 2 transcripts and the endnotes written by the researchers. The 'publishable quality' transcripts which will result are known as "Level 3" transcripts.
- concurrently with the above, the project would like to publish the Level 3 transcripts in a series of printed volumes entitled The Correspondence of Alfred Russel Wallace. The project estimates that the correspondence will ultimately fill 11 thick volumes, each taking about 2 years to produce with two full-time staff. The project is currently seeking funding to produce volume 1, which will contain all letters from Wallace's childhood, up until his return from the 'Malay Archipelago' in 1862.

All of the WCP's transcripts and associated metadata are now available online in Cambridge University Library's Epsilon system. Epsilon replaces the project's original online archive, Wallace Letters Online, which is replete with errors and very out of date (it was last updated in 2015). The transcripts in JSTOR are similarly out of date. Note that although all the metadata in this catalogue are also present in Epsilon, the catalogue gives a different view of the data, which scholars and others will hopefully find useful.

Definition of a letter

The WCP defines a letter as a manuscript communication which has been posted or telegraphed by one person to another. This therefore excludes items such as books or magazines posted by or to Wallace without an enclosed manuscript message.

Most letters were sent enclosed in an envelope, but some were not i.e. postcards, and some early letters (lettersheets), where the writing paper bearing the handwritten text is folded in such a way that one side bears the postal address of the intended recipient. All items enclosed in an envelope together with a manuscript letter and the envelope itself, are regarded as being part of the letter (more precisely the 'letter packet').

In addition to posted letters, the following documents are catalogued:

- Author's drafts of letters to or from Wallace, even when the text of the final 'posted' version of the letter is known.
- Carbon copies of letters (these lack printed or embossed letterheads and usually the signature of the sender).
- Old handwritten/typed transcripts of letters to or from Wallace, especially where the original version is not known.
- Published letters (or excerpts) to or from Wallace, largely excluding letters which were specifically written by Wallace for publication (i.e. 'letters to the editor') (LTTEs), which have all been catalogued by Charles Smith and are reproduced on his Wallace Page website). Only the earliest published version of a letter is catalogued, unless later versions are significantly different, in which case they too are included. Published excerpts of letters are catalogued only in cases where a more complete version of the letter is not known.

All items associated with a letter (e.g. the items which make up the letter packet, plus author's drafts, published transcripts of the letter etc.) are assigned a master WCP cataloguing number (e.g. "WCP788") to unite them. Each document is also assigned a unique item number e.g. an enclosure to letter WCP788 may have the item number "98" and its complete WCP cataloguing number would therefore be "WCP788.98".

Protocols used in the catalogue

Names of author/addressee: The full name used by that person at the time of their death is given. Any commonly used nicknames or pseudonyms are noted in brackets and quotes (" ") after the forename(s) and any earlier surname(s) is/are noted in brackets () after the surname, using "née" to indicate a maiden name, "formerly" to indicate a change for a reason other than marriage, and "then" to indicate any earlier married names. Some examples:

Patrick Proctor ("Pat") Alexander
 Helen Mary Elizabeth Allingham (née Paterson)
 Frances ("Fanny") Sims (née Wallace)
 George Edward Comerford-Casey (formerly Casey)
 Marion de Grey (née Withers then Gwytherne-Williams)

Date of the letter: Any inferred information is enclosed in square brackets "[]" e.g. if the month was inferred the date might read "26 [April] 1856". Question marks are used to indicate uncertainty about the date or part of the date e.g. "26 April? 1856" if the month is uncertain; or "26? April? 1856?" if the entire date is uncertain. If a letter was written on multiple dates, the last date is given as the date of the letter, but the earliest and last date are also given as a date range.

Addresses of the author: The contemporary address is given in full, with modern versions of place names in "[]". For example, the address on the letter may simply read "Old Orchard" but the complete address will be given instead i.e. "Old Orchard, Broadstone, Wimborne, Dorset, England". If the whole address is enclosed in square brackets ("[]") it means that it has been inferred for that letter. If it is followed by a question mark ("??") this means we are uncertain whether the letter was posted from/to that address.

Page number: This figure is the number of pages with original text i.e. excluding blank pages and pages which have text written/typed on to them after the letter was posted (e.g. notes made by the recipient on a blank sheet of the letter).

Timeline of Places Where Wallace Lived

DATES	HOUSE AND/OR PLACE
8 January 1823-late 1828/early 1829	Kensington Cottage, near Usk, Monmouthshire, England (Wallace was born here).
late 1828/early 1829-early 1837	Five childhood homes in Hertford, Hertfordshire, England and Hertford Grammar School (he left school aged 14 on 18 March 1837).
early 1837-summer 1837	Lives with his brother John in Robert Street, London.
summer 1837-December 1843	Works as a land-surveyor with his brother William and travels widely in England and Wales. Becomes interested in botany in c. 1842 in Neath, Wales.
early 1844-Easter 1845	Boards in the Headmaster's House at the Collegiate School, Leicester, England. Meets Henry Walter Bates.
Easter 1845-early 1848	William dies. Moves to Neath, Wales (he initially lodges with Mr Sims; then rents Llantwit Cottage).
March?-April 1848	He and Henry Walter Bates stay at 50 Upper Albany Street, Regent's Park, London in preparation for their trip to South America.
26 April 1848-1 October 1852	Spends four years traveling in the Amazon Basin.
early October-Christmas 1852	Lodges at 43 Upper Albany Street, London whilst waiting to move into 44 Upper Albany Street.
Christmas 1852-26 January 1854	Rents 44 Upper Albany Street, London and lives there with his mother and sister.
4 March 1854-31 March 1862 (27 January-3 March 1854 was spend living on Navy ships waiting to leave England)	Spends eight years traveling in the 'Malay Archipelago' (now Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia and East Timor) and whilst there writes his famous 'Sarawak Law' (1855) and 'Ternate' (1858) papers. Leaves Singapore for England on the 8th February 1862.

early April 1862-March 1865	Stays with his sister and her husband at 5 Westbourne Grove Terrace, London.
March 1865-6/20 July 1867	Rents 9 St Mark's Crescent, Regent's Park, London. Sublets the house during the period he lived in Hurstpierpoint, Sussex, England.
6/20 July 1867-early July 1868	Stays at Treeps in Hurstpierpoint, Sussex, England (Wallace's father-in-law's house). When visiting London during this period he stays with his sister and her husband at 76 ½ Westbourne Grove, Bayswater, London.
early July 1868-22 March 1870	Returns to 9 St Mark's Crescent, Regent's Park, London.
22 March 1870-25 March 1872	Rents Holly House, Tanner Street, Barking, London.
25 March 1872-25 June/23 July 1876	Lives in The Dell, Grays, Essex, England, the first of three houses he had built.
25 June/23 July 1876-March 1878	Rents Rose Hill, Dorking, Surrey, England.
March 1878-March/June 1880	Rents Waldron Edge, Duppas Hill Lane, Croydon, Surrey, England.
March/June 1880-5 May 1881	Rents Pen-y-Bryn, St Peter's Road, Croydon, Surrey, England.
5 May 1881-16 March 1889 (Goes on lecture tour to North America 9 October 1886 - 20 August 1887)	Lives in Nutwood Cottage, Frith Hill, Godalming, Surrey, England, the second house he built.
16 March 1889-24 June 1889	Rents unidentified house in Godalming.
24 June 1889-18/20 September 1902	Rents, then buys Corfe View, Parkstone, Dorset, England.
18/20 September 1902-mid-November 1902	Lodges at 57 York Road, Broadstone, Dorset, England, owned by Jane Clark.
mid-November 1902-7 November 1913	Lives in Old Orchard, Broadstone, Dorset, England, the third house he built. He dies here.

Acknowledgements

I am extremely grateful to the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation (USA), the Alfred Russel Wallace Centenary Celebration (USA), and the John Templeton Foundation (USA) for generous grants which made the Wallace Correspondence Project possible. I am also very grateful to SeaTrek Sailing Adventures (Bali), Paul Herrling and Arthur E. Bogan for generous donations to the project, and to London's Natural History Museum and the Charles Darwin Trust for hosting the project during Phases 1 and 2 respectively.

I am very grateful to the following people:

Sir David Attenborough and Bill Bailey for agreeing to be the project's patrons.

James Moore, for advice on the extent and distribution of Wallace correspondence. By sharing results from his research over many years, he saved the project much time, effort and money.

Richard Milner, for much support and help and for providing funding through his Wallace Centenary Celebration project.

Paul Wason, for believing in the project, seeing it through difficult times and helping secure much needed funding from the John Templeton Foundation.

Randal Keynes for considerable help in planning Phase 2 of the project and for agreeing that the Charles Darwin Trust would host the Templeton grant.

Karen Goldie-Morrison and other trustees of the Charles Darwin Trust for help administering the project's Templeton grant.

Nancy Rossi for managing the project's finances during Phase 2.

I also thank the following project staff for helping to find letters new to the project, catalogue them, and help to correct the metadata: Ruth Benny, Matt Beros, Caroline Catchpole, Nancy Chillingworth, Paula Lucas, Anna Mayer, Charlotte Robinson, Danni Sherwood, and Elizabeth Helen Watt. A very big thanks also to the dozens of other people and organisations, plus the 171 people who have generously volunteered over the years, for their work on other aspects of the project. They are acknowledged individually here: <https://wallaceletters.myspecies.info/content/acknowledgements>

Finally, I would like to thank Jan Beccaloni, Manish Bhardwaj, Clay Bolt, Jacqueline Holdsworth, Dani Kayumanis, and Ellinor Michel for advice on the design the cover page of this catalogue, and Mat Berros and Jan Beccaloni for comments on the introductory text.
